Whether you're an early-stage startup in need of more development resources or a growing business looking to improve your speed of production, we have a model that will work for you. Learning the ins and outs of your company allows us to find you a good cultural and technical fit from our network of talent.

2.

Submit Your Request

This is where we learn about your unique needs. Submit a project request or share profiles of your ideal candidates for extending your team. If NDAs need to be signed, we'll do it now. Most requests are handled within 24 hours as we have a huge database of top-talented technical teams & specialists.

Review Selected Profiles

Based on the information you've given us, we'll personally look through our vast talent network to find the developers with the skills and experience most relevant to your needs. You'll be provided with up to three matches for each specific project. Feel free to request to see as many resumé's as you need to determine the best fit for your team.

Interview Final Candidates

We'll arrange a meeting so you can talk to your potential new team members. We've already taken care of screening our developers and finding top talent—all you need to do is determine who you would most like to work with. This is where you get to evaluate the right mix of technical & cultural fit prior to kicking off the engagement.

Sign a Contract

Once the scope of work and hourly rate is agreed upon, we'll get a contract in place. The contracts are designed to ensure that the project goes smoothly for clients and developers. Smaller startups and projects will be asked to pay in advance, but you'll be able to review and approve the work. The engineers and vendors will only get paid if you're happy. Net terms are available for venture-funded startups upon a successful credit check.
